The University of Plymouth, which celebrates its 150th anniversary in 2012, is one of the UK's most prominent and dynamic universities with an educational history dating back to 1862. The University of Plymouth was ranked 14th in The Guardian League Table 2018 UK universities ranking. Described by Times Higher Education as among the newly-emerging 'modern global elite', University of Plymouth is ranked inside the top 280 universities in the world, and 42nd in terms of those aged under 50.

The University of Plymouth is renowned for high quality, internationally-leading education, research and innovation.

With a mission to Advance Knowledge and Transform Lives, Plymouth is a top 50 research university (Research Fortnight Research Power League Table 2014), with clusters of world class research across a wide range of disciplines including marine science and engineering, medicine, robotics and psychology. A three-time winner of the Queen's Anniversary Prize for Higher and Further Education, the University continues to grow in stature and reputation.

It has a strong track record for teaching and learning excellence and has one of the highest numbers of National Teaching Fellows of any UK university. With over 19,000 students, and a further 9,500 studying for Plymouth degree at partner institutions in the UK and around the world, and over 130,000 alumni pursuing their chosen careers globally, it has a growing global presence.

The mission of Plymouth Business School is to put business ready graduates on the path to a successful career and happy life. With a focus on learning by doing through live briefs, experiential education and students as active researchers the lecturers are dedicated to building resilience, decision making and leadership capabilities in our students.

Staff within the Tourism and Hospitality teaching team also undertake exciting and innovative research covering such subjects as: genocide heritage; tourism and crime prevention; tourism employability; and the development of tourism and heritage related narratives. Plymouth staff have also published articles in top-rated tourism journals such as the Annals of Tourism Research and Tourism Management.

The Guardian recently voted University of Plymouth as one of the top 14 providers of tourism courses in the UK

Plymouth has been ranked 14th overall out of 45 by the Guardian University Guide 2018: League Table for Hospitality, Events and Tourism and 12th out of 49 overall by the Sunday Times University Guide 2014: Hospitality, Leisure, Recreation and Tourism. The Complete University Guide 2022 ranked the programmes 11th place out of 57 for Tourism, Transport, Travel & Heritage Studies.

Validity Period: 01/09/2015 to 31/08/2024

This tourism management degree programme aims to enable students to gain a broad understanding of the development of tourism and have a critical awareness of the issues that underpin best practice in this field. The programme also enables students to meet the changing demands of society and the economy, and develop vocationally relevant managerial skills needed for employment or further study. In particular, students will be able to integrate subject specific knowledge and transferable skills to develop a specialist topic in depth, conduct a research investigation, and effectively report the findings in the Honours Project module.

This hospitality management degree programme is designed to provide a strong vocational theme relevant for a wide range of employment sectors in the hospitality industry. Hospitality embraces a wide range of sectors including: contract catering, hotels, leisure (such as theatres and casinos), licensed retail (pubs and clubs), restaurants and welfare catering. Hospitality continues to be one of the largest growth industries. Its successful management depends on high-quality business skills and the ability to provide consumer satisfaction. This programme aims to equip students with appropriate knowledge and understanding of hospitality and to develop their skills needed for employment or further study.

- Project
- Tests (open/closed book) - if applicable

On Campus Transfer

Overseas study opportunities for a full semester will be available for several students to study in Plymouth with all Hong Kong credits being counted toward the qualification. No additional tuition fees will be applied, however, accommodation, flight and other personal expenses will be on the own expenses of students. Financial subsidies may be available, please consult programme staff for more information.

Exchange Programme (2020)

Further Studies

Upon graduation, students will have developed independent thinking skills, critical analysis of current hospitality and tourism management knowledge. Honours degree students will have undertaken a final-year project which includes data collection and analysis, therefore, students will be well-equipped with research skills necessary for further studies. Graduates with second-class honours are eligible to apply for the Master of Science Tourism and Hospitality Management programme, in collaboration with University of Plymouth at HKU SPACE (Full time: 12 months; Part time: 18 months), and they can enjoy 10% alumni discount of tuition fee.

Work Placement

Students will have opportunities to voluntarily participate in various tourism, hospitality, event, and cruise related job placements & internship in Hong Kong in order to gain more exposure and polish their customer service skills.

Career Opportunities

Our programmes are designed with the vision of developing high-calibre tourism and hospitality managers with an international perspective. Each module is designed to produce graduates who have the skills to function and communicate in the exciting industry, one of the world's fastest growing fields. Learning is enriched through a wide range of activities, in particular professional talks, case study discussions and field trips which blend business management perspectives with local insight. Graduates can also consider working in service industries that appreciate their transferable management skills and aptitude developed from the programmes.

For cruise management programme, the University of Plymouth has strong links with a number of global cruise companies and work in partnership with Celebrity Cruises (RCL), P&O and Cunard (Carnival UK). Currently, there are University of Plymouth main campus students working on-board as guest relations officers, food and beverage officers and in shore excursions departments with both Celebrity Cruise and P&O Cruises.

Tuition Fee

The tuition fee* for the 2022/23 academic year is HK$105,000, payable over 3 semesters. The tuition fee covers all the fees charged by University of Plymouth, which include application handling fee and assessment fee. The fee for textbook, re-sitting for assessments, resubmission of assessments, and repeating the studies for each module of study is not included. Additional fees of overnight cruise line field trip are not included.

* The tuition fee is reviewed annually and is subject to change without prior notice.

Continuing Education Fund

Selected modules in the tourism/hospitality programmes have been included in the list of reimbursable courses under the Continuing Education Fund.

According to the terms and conditions of the CEF, students seeking reimbursement of the fees under CEF must not have obtained any other publicly-funded financial assistance, such as FASP, for the same programme/modules to avoid double benefits. For details, please refer to <http://www.wfsfaa.gov.hk/cef>. Please find the updated information on website.

Financial Assistance Schemes

The University of Plymouth's Bachelor of Science (Honours) Tourism Management programme / Bachelor of Science (Honours) Hospitality Management programme delivered in Hong Kong is successfully accredited by the Hong Kong Council for Accreditation of Academic and Vocational Qualifications (HKCAAVQ). Full-time students are eligible to apply for Hong Kong government grants and low-interest loans, i.e. Financial Assistance Scheme for Post-secondary Students (FASP) and Non-means-tested Loan Scheme for Post-secondary Students (NLSPS).
